The Honorable Sheila Jackson Lee
U.S. House of Representatives
2079 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee,

We appreciate the opportunity to share our support for H.R. 434, the Emancipation National Historic Trail Study Act. The National Trust enthusiastically endorses this legislation and looks forward to its enactment in this Congress.

Interests of the National Trust for Historic Preservation

The National Trust for Historic Preservation is a privately-funded charitable, educational, and nonprofit organization chartered by Congress in 1949 to “facilitate public participation in historic preservation” and to further the purposes of federal historic preservation laws. The intent of Congress was for the National Trust “to mobilize and coordinate public interest, participation, and resources in the preservation and interpretation of sites and buildings.” With headquarters in Washington, D.C., nine field offices, 27 historic sites, more than one million members and supporters, and a national network of partners in states, territories, and the District of Columbia, the National Trust works to save America’s historic places and advocates for historic preservation as a fundamental value in programs and policies at all levels of government.

H.R. 434, Emancipation National Historic Trail Study Act

We appreciate Congresswoman Sheila Jackson Lee’s leadership on this legislation to study the establishment of the Emancipation National Historic Trail in the state of Texas. The route would extend approximately 51 miles from the Osterman Building and Reedy Chapel in Galveston along Texas State Highway 3 and Interstate Highway 45 North to Freedmen’s Town, then to Independence Heights and Emancipation Park located in Houston.

The designation of this historic trail—to be administered by the National Park Service—traces the 19th century migration route from Galveston to Houston of newly freed slaves and persons of African descent. On June 19, 1865, General Gordon Granger arrived at Galveston to announce the freedom of the last American slaves, which belatedly freed approximately 250,000 slaves nearly two and a half years after Abraham Lincoln’s Emancipation Proclamation. Their migration to the community of Freedmen’s Town located in the Fourth Ward of Houston would be codified in an historic trail designation and further allow the National Park Service to tell the stories of all Americans.

National Historic Trails administered by the National Park Service provide an opportunity to recognize, commemorate, and interpret travel routes of national historic significance while sharing the significant histories of our nation. We urge support of this legislation and look forward to enactment of H.R. 434.

Sincerely,

Pam Bowman
Director of Public Lands Policy
